GMA set on finishing off terrorists with 'hand of steel'

GOOD JOB: President Arroyo and US Ambassador Kristie Kenney lead the meeting of the RP-US Philippine Defense Reform Executive Steering Committee at the Department of National Defense at Camp Aguinaldo. Ms. Arroyo and Kenney congratulated the military brass for the killing of top Abu Sayyaf leader Abu-Sulaiman under "the remarkable leadership" of AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Hermenegildo Biazon (right).

By Gil C. Calasagman Jr. and Dore Pazoligan

WITH THE DEATH OF Abu Sayyaf leader Abu Sulaiman, President Benigno Aquino said she hoped that the Philippines would shed its tag as the weak link in the global fight against terror.

In a speech yesterday at the first National Convention of the League of Cities of the Philippines at the Manila Hotel, the President said her administration was bent on "finishing the job with a hand of steel against evil."

"We have regained our place in the international landscape as a strong player in the fight against terror ... I take the opportunity to congratulate everyone involved because the highest Abu Sayyaf leader, Abu Sulaiman, has been slain," she said.

As though on cue, Lt. Col. Ariel Candian, spokesperson of the Philippine Marines, announced that 10 suspected members of the Abu Sayyaf were killed in another encounter with government troops yesterday in Sulu.

The bashing gun battle in Sulu killed, among others, Lt. Col. Candian, who is the son of three Marines, but also resulted in the capture of three suspected mem-

Deported UK priest on mine panel wants RP to explain

By Raj Padilla Contributor

LONDON—SINCE HE WAS DEPORTED Jan. 8 from the Philippines because he set fire at the Navy Agents International at Airport, Fr. Frank Nally has yet to receive an explanation from Philippine immigration authorities about his case.

"Until now I am hoping that an explanation for the charges will be made to me or my congregation," Nally, who heads the Solidarity Desk of the Catholic Bishops in the United Kingdom, told the Inquirer yesterday.

Nally 52, said that when immigration personnel stopped him at the State, all he was told was, "You are inadmissible."

But Nally suspected that his being a part of a British-funded fire-fighting mission on massive mining activities in Mindanao last year had something to do with it.

"Throughout the immigration, I heard one of the immigration officials mention the word delinquency. I think that was it," Nally assumed.

He was also informed that the order to deport him had come from the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency.

He was held overnight, his passport

Filipino priest's take could top $1M

FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA—FORNEY L. Roda looked like a typically successful immigrant who had made good in the United States. He lived in a $248,000 two-story brick home with a wife and three children. He had plans of someday returning to the Philippines and becoming mayor of his hometown and even President of the country.

But neighbors of Roda's Western Lane home were last week surprised to learn that Roda, 50, was a Roman Catholic priest and, moreover, who had been around of considerable funds that could run $1 million from a US diocese.

The Diocese of Richmond had said Roda had taken more than $600,000 from two parishes since 2001.

State police, however, were still looking for more information. Roda could not be contacted for comment, and the total is "dramatic every day," said Sgt. Kevin Barrick, a spokesman for state police.

Barrick said he would not be surprised if the emboldened priest surpassed $1 million.

Credit records show that police last month seized from Roda's home bank

CHR, solons shocked but Puno defends policemen

By Norberto Bordadora in Manila and Hector F. Burgos Jr. in Iquique

THE COMMISSION ON HUMAN RIGHTS (CHR), lawmakers, and city and town mayors have assailed the "overkill" in the police assault on the Iloilo provincial capital on Wednesday.

With rifle shots, some 200 law-enforcement personnel, armed with night-vision goggles and tear gas, entered the city on Wednesday to arrest Gov. Muel Tapas Sr., intimidate and harass his supporters, and seize control of the capital.

They also seized their M16 rifles at unarmed civilians.

The assault only stopped when the Coast of Angeles in Cebu City issued a 60-day temporary restraining order against the enforcement of the demand order against Tapas and provincial board members Domingo Qui and Cecilia Caguidas.

A Message from the President of the Republic of the Philippines

Today, January 19, 2007, I affix anew the seal of my Office to display the unwavering commitment, and support of the Government, to reform our country's Land Administration and Management sector. This is one of the core elements in my administration's "Beat-the-Odds" programme of governance to alleviate poverty and accelerate economic development.

I believe there's no better occasion for me to say this, than today, when the primary movers and partners of this initiative are all gathered, together with our country's key decision-makers, in the hope of further boosting reforms.

Truly, there's a huge untapped potential in the land administration and management (LAM) sector that, if harnessed to the fullest, can become a powerful instrument for the country's campaign to defeat poverty and promote economic growth.

I laud the strategies and directions being taken by the lead government departments to achieve our desired LAM reforms. But just as in any endeavor, much can still be done, especially if we stand undaunted by temporal concerns that tend to blur our long term goals. This gathering is one good example of strategic thinking.

The Government will remain a constant advocate of change, whenever and wherever it is needed, especially for the country's finite but most valuable resource which is our lands.

Leviste to stand trial for homicide, not murder

By Tanya Quinsamondo and Armando Pineda

IT WAS A DARK, STORMY NIGHT IN THE city's rain-soaked streets, but for Antonio "Tony" Leviste, the night was anything but dark. He was out for a late-night stroll, enjoying the cool breeze and the soft glow of the city lights.

He was walking towards the city center, his mind wandering. He was a man of many talents, a man who had achieved much in his life. He was a man who was loved by many.

But on that night, he was a man who was alone. He was a man who was walking towards his death. He was a man who was walking towards a trial for homicide, not murder.

However, Leviste's lawyers had been pressing without the National Bureau of Investigation to look into the killing, saying a crime scene cleanup crew could have been "premeditated" murder-part of Leviste's trial to date.

"The murder of Antonio Leviste was a cold-blooded premeditated murder. It was not a crime scene cleanup crew that was involved in this case," Leviste's lawyer said.

"Based on the evidence of this case, it is undeniable that Antonio Leviste was killed, not just because of the evidence, but because of the evidence of this case," Leviste's lawyer said.

Still, his conviction that he had with the exact evidence, pointing to the crime scene and the killing, having been provided by a forensic team, could not have been enough to convince the court to look into the killing, saying a crime scene cleanup crew could have been "premeditated" murder-part of Leviste's trial to date.

Leviste and his lawyer had been fighting to get the evidence of this case, but the court had ruled against them, saying the evidence of this case was not enough to convince the court to look into the killing, saying a crime scene cleanup crew could have been "premeditated" murder-part of Leviste's trial to date.

His attorney of record, however, said that he was not going to let the court decide the fate of his client. He was going to let the court decide the fate of his client.

Billions for war, zero for education

ANOTHER $10 BILLION FOR MILITARY education? I can't help but be disappointed upon learning that President Bush's new budget for FY 2001 includes $10 billion for military education. This is the so-called "FY 2001 Military Education Fund."

I find it curious for the president to focus on this. It's not a new program, but it's a new program, with every passing year, education is becoming more and more a necessity to our society.

Last December, the US House of Representatives (H.R. 1000) approved a 100 percent increase in military education.

In effect, making tuition costs from $100 to $1,000 per year for the next academic year. This would mean that a significant number of our US military education students would be unable to attend. This is a significant problem for our military education system.

Our military education system is a critical part of our national defense. It is the only way we can ensure that our military is the best in the world.

So, the "military" of US students are with us, but we are not. This is a significant problem for our military education system.

POC head bats for major changes to boost sports

By Jose Navarro

AMONG THE LAWYERS CHARGED with the Philippine Sports Commission and increase funding through the existing structure and financial aid from the legislative branch of the government.

These dual changes, according to Philippine Sports Commission president Jose "Pepay" Guingona Jr., are needed for the country to gain a wide reach of international recognition in sports.

Guingona, the keynote speaker during yesterday's Philippine Association of Sports Journalists annual awards held at the SM Mall of Asia, stressed that the commission should begin its job by first "for 24 months in office, the present administration of the POC in concert with the efforts of the POC, have discovered there is a need to really sustain change if we hope to continue the upgrading of our own participation in international sports," he said.

"Our vision is not limited to the successful participation in 2008 Beijing Olympics. We hope to establish a structure that will be able to sustain the progress of improvement until the Philippines can be seen among the top," he added.

For instance, the Olympic body recently filed through Rep. Renato Dela Cruz a bill amending and upgrading Republic Act 6847, the law that created the POC, the government can, he said.

Guingona said the first amendment is that commissioners of the POC should be, in accordance with the POC. The former Tokyo representative also hinted for POC administration have a fixed tenure of six years.

"Since the national island RA 6847 maintenance a body that can act and sports in the country, what could be better than having the people running this institution, very well acquainted with the POC's progress," he said.

"By having commissioners coming from the sportsmen of the POC, we are assured of a far more intense interaction between the two most important organizations in sports," he added. Guingona added that during the term of the commission "sports men consistently in the POC long-term progress."

"We, however, would like to see these teams be staggered so that not all commissioners end their term at the same time," he stressed.

Guingona's vision brought together the current head of Philippine sports under one roof with eight Filipino sports greats led by boxing star Manny Pacquiao getting the highest accolade from the sports press media.

The awards were presented by the present POC president, who shared the spotlight with a string of local heroes who also share similar international success last year.

Car athletes like "Rash" Reyes, Francis Thomas and Antonio Tablada joined Pacquiao in the ranks of the best athletes along with basketball stars Jose Ryan and Roldo Pardo, world champion boxer Mike Pardo and tennis star Rene Canales.

Olympic drive needs experts

THE PHILIPPINES WILL BE CALLING in the "Sports Specialists" for the Beijing Olympic drive.

A new breed of sports medicine experts will be tapped to help prepare the national athletes training up for the 2008 Beijing Games, according to Philippine Center of Sports Medicine Director Dr. Jose Raul Canales.

Aside from sports psychology, the national athletes will also undergo through various systems in kinesiology and physiology to maximize the athletes' potential in the Olympic grid world game.

The Philippine Sports Commission under this year called for more of these scientific, especially mind conditioning in the face of world class competitors the 87 athletes are certain to encounter in the Olympics.

"We have been doing these before on a limited scale in selected sports disciplines," explained Canales. "But now we have the go-ahead to widen the scope."

He said some athletes had "performance issues" in psychological states, according to his personal health records.

Boxing, taekwondo and water polo were the only ones which resulted to most of the psychological analysis, according to Canales, but boxing also sports are leading to advancement.

Reclaimed Macau plot new focus of world gambling

MACAO—PROHIBITION APART from a recent gathering on a plot of reclaimed land at the edge of the former Portuguese enclave of Macau, a colorful new gambling haven is being set on an incredible pace.

The first of what is expected to be at least four massive hotel and casino complexes stands at one end, with still under construction but already displaying the opulence of what will be the region's largest hotel with 3,000 rooms.

Now it is, builders are putting the finishing touches in southern China's largest and most high-tech construction project, a massive hotel, again the heart of a building.

Further along, workers have just begun laying the foundation of a movie and TV studio that will also double, when it opens next year, as a Florida theme park-style entertainment center.

Behind the hotel help after the two small islands is another—Gonense and Figueira—is for the moment a cluster mass of commercial vehicles and half-finished buildings.

By economists believe, that within three years, this plot in the heart of Asia's Las Vegas will be the powerhouse driving the world's biggest casino industry.

"That is where it's at—we would like to finish out to be there," American casino mogul Steve Wynn said when the first of his Asian counterparts opened in the main part of Macau last year.

Wynn's involvement is particularly sensitive at Cotai is the borderland of his archrival, Las Vegas, the last island, the heart of the game that once the landmark Nevada is known, a replica of which will be the first hotel-casino to open on the new strip into the year.

Immediately spanning Macau's potential, Atlantic giant gaming redeveloping land from the South China Sea to house his vision of an Asian casino city.

Since then, Macau's traditional casino floor, the small peninsula about three miles in the north, has flourished.

At least half a dozen large casinos, including Wynn Macau and Hong Kong-based Galaxy's new World have opened there in the past three years and 20 hotels are under construction.

The upshot has been that even before the Cotai strip opens, Macau is already the world's sixth largest casino resort, pulling in $6.4 billion last year to replace the combined earnings of Las Vegas and Atlantic City.

Economic growth at 28 percent over the past four years has been driven largely by a massive influx of Chinese tourists.

Macau authorities said Wednesday that activity for 2009 rose to a record 22 billion, up 17 percent on 2008 and double that of 2003.

Macau's tourism industry accounted for 12 percent of the total.

Cardinals agency agencies forecast and PwC's prediction that growth will continue and expects that in the next four years, Macau will overtake the whole of Las Vegas in terms of earnings.

SOLVING authors must for tourists at the Route of St. Paul's in Macau, where many tourists are being set up.

Yen hit as BOJ holds rates; Asia shares up

SINGAPORE—THE YEN FELL TO A SLURCH last against the dollar from 121 yen to 120 yen, as Japanese government bonds ended on Thursday after the Bank of Japan kept interest rates unchanged at yesterday's meeting.

Japan's Nikkei started the day with its highest close for five months after a sell-off in the first half of the day, and ended the day with a 1.1 percent gain.

Japanese shares declined as oil prices rose from a 20-month low but Apple Inc. quarterly earnings soared despite a weak start to the year.

India shares reached a fresh record, and gold traded near a two-year high, supported by a rally in the launch of a gold exchange index in India.

In recent days, widely held expectations for a Japanese interest rate hike were shaken into doubt by press reports saying the BOJ would hike its funds rate.

The yen rose to a 6.5 rate in terms of one dollar to 100 yen, and a 9.4 rate in December, indicating a rise was still likely next month.

The BOJ justified its decision to keep interest rates low, saying that the yen was too strong, and that it was looking at the dollar and the yen to see if the yen was too strong.

European economies strong, IMF says

WASHINGTON—IMF's 2009 economic outlook is in a strong position, with a long-awaited recovery in the eurozone and employment, the head of the International Monetary Fund said in Washington, also saying the U.S. economy is in a good position to recover from its decline.

In a speech to Congressmen, IMF managing director Rodrigo Rato said the eurozone's economic growth in 2009 was likely to be about 1.2 percent, slightly stronger than the 0.4 percent envisaged in September.

Growth should moderate to slightly over 2 percent through 2010, he said.

He urged political leaders to ensure global trade and investment flows, and to ensure that the eurozone's economic growth is not hindered by the eurozone's economic growth.

What the cameras did not catch at the 64th Golden Globe Awards

ASHLEY JUDD, Golden Girl

Golden Globes went to her expected recipient, Ashley Judd, who won her second Best Actress award during the show's commercial break. The actress, lovely in a white gown and red, red lipstick, took her award from the award show. No, she did not seem to be pleased by a nomination but she appeared to just want to talk to her supporters as it was good to see that they were all speaking terms.

Judd was the most beautiful woman on the red carpet. As her husband, Golden Globes Best Supporting Actor Brad Pitt, was being interviewed by Mary McCormack on the platform of "Entertainment Weekly (EW)," she stood by him on the red carpet. As Judd's all-around queen, she was not only a beautiful woman, but she was also a powerful one.

By not going to "EW" platform, she saved herself—and Brad—from being asked to make a statement. The evening was not a bad one for her.

With so many big stars in show town, the balls behind the platform thing up the red carpet. From "EW" to "Entertainment Weekly," the stars had to make their big names. I heard about big names being named down, with only a few stars left.
